Malegaon blast: Lok Sabha panel defers hearing of Purohit

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 23

THE COMMITTEE on Petitions of Lok Sabha, which was scheduled to hear Malegaon blast case arising from the Purohit case, Chief Justice of India D Y Chandrachud said that often judgments given on issues of constitutional importance are a "vote of conscience".

"Generally speaking, chief justices have not been in the minority. There are 13 significant cases in our history where chief justices have been in the minority. I do believe that sometimes it's a vote of conscience and I stand by what I said," the CJ said answering a question on his minority opinion in the same-sex marriage case, at the Georgetown University's third edition of the comparative constitutional law discussion co-hosted by the Society for Democratic Rights (SDR), New Delhi, on "Perspectives from the Supreme Courts of India and the United States" in Washington DC.

Responding to a question on what led him to arrive at his department, three-member committee, which will include Education Minister Rishi Nath Varshney, equality, fraternity, the right to freedom of speech and expression and the "unique oneness of our civilisation", among others.

Elaborating on the minority opinion in the five-judge bench ruling, he said there are many foundational constitutional principles which allow for same-sex unions in terms of civil unions such as the right(s) to association, life and liberty, free speech and expression; and conscience.

On the lack of agreement between the bench on key issues like recognising civil unions, he said, "Three of my colleagues recogleges will have to make a PowerPoint presentation on its academic activities and performance in the minority by upholding the right of non-heterosexual couples to adopt and said, "In India, an individual man and woman cannot adopt but same-sex couples cannot adopt jointly. Why should queer couples be deprived of such a right just because they are in a relationship?"

"We couldn't by judicial fiat enter into a very complex area which wasn't just confined to marriage but went into other areas like adoption, inheritance, succession, tax, etc. Therefore, we said it is for the Parliament to act," the CJ said.

As per the information we received, the officer stopped a couple of fans from carrying the national flag and later put it in a nearby bin and then took it. We conducted an initial inquiry and the officer was transferred to the control room," the DCP said.

Meanwhile, state Tamil Nadu BJP president K Annamalai lambasted the police. "The police outside the stadium disallowed fans from carrying the Indian flag to today's match in Chepauk. Who gave TNCA this right?" he wrote on X.

BISHAN SINGH BEDI had a habit of making early morning calls. It would mostly be about something that had kept him up all night. Not known to suffer fools or be easily impressed, Bedi set high standards for cricket players and administrators. A wily left-arm spinner on the field but a straight-talking cricket romantic off it, Bedi truly believed that cricket was a sacred island that needed to be governed by the principles of fair play and meritocracy.

After suffering a heart attack and brain stroke two years back, Bedi had recently undergone a knee surgery. On Monday, after a prolonged illness and hospitalisation, Bedi, 77, passed away. He is survived by wife Anju, son Anand and try, India continues to be seen as an intriguing land of spinners.

An ardent reader and very

He, along with the other Delhi boy, Shikhar, leaped over the in-stadia advertisement hoarding and touched his feet. In fact, Bedi's feet were the most-touched at Kotla.

But a man of strong principles, Bedi wanted to be dissociated from Kotla, when the capital's cricket administrators wanted to name the stadium after the late Union minister, Arun Jaitley. In a scathing letter, he would write: "The place of the administrators is in their glass cabins... Late Arun Jaitley, I'm told, was an able politician. So it's Parliament, not a cricket stadium, which needs to remember him for posterity."

Always game for a good fight, he sided with the underdog and took on the establishment. But while doing so, he remained a proud Indian.
